Complaint Management Policy

Effective from 01/07/04

PREFACE

The ACF continually tries to provide a righteous environment for all members. If, in the unfortunate event that there has been a digression from the optimum, participants have a right to seek correction of the event.

This policy provides a framework for the handling of complaints in a fair, confidential and constructive manner. Whilst no organisation likes to receive complaints, we view it as an opportunity to correct what might have gone astray.

PART III – OPERATING PROCEDURES

6. PRINCIPLES OF OPERATION - EFFECTIVE COMPLAINTS MANAGEMENT

- 6.1 An effective complaints system must be:

- (a) backed by a strong commitment to the complaints system amongst all levels of the ACF and its Affiliated Bodies;
- (b) fair, and seen to be fair, by members of the ACF and its Affiliated Bodies;
- (c) easily accessible and well publicised for all people, including those with special needs;
- (d) responsive to members by providing a full, impartial, speedy investigation of their concerns and appropriate responses where warranted;

- (e) effective - able to address the individual person's complaint and use the information collected through this process to improve performance overall - and regularly reviewed to ensure that it is meeting needs; and
- (f) open and accountable, so members can judge for themselves whether the complaint system is working effectively.

6.2 Goals of effective complaints management:

- (a) Resolution of member dissatisfaction.
- (b) Improvement of processes, systems, rules and skills related to the delivery and management of calisthenic programs within Australia.

7. STANDARDS FOR COMPLAINT MANAGEMENT

7.1 Defining Complaints:

- (a) A complaint is any dissatisfaction expressed by an interested party about a specific ACF program or activity or behaviour/actions of a person. The complainant (interested party) defines the actual complaint.
- (b) An "interested party" may be the person affected, a friend, an advocate, an organisation etc.
- (c) When the complaint is lodged by someone other than a member, it should be established whether the complainant has appropriate authority to lodge the complaint on behalf of someone else.
- (d) The ACF should ascertain the person's outcome expectations when each complaint is lodged.

7.2 The right to complain:

- (a) Any person or organisation participating in ACF activities or affected by its decisions, has the right to complain if dissatisfied.
- (b) Complaints may also be made by an interested party on behalf of another person. It should be established that an "interested party" has the authority to make such a complaint and issues relating to confidentiality need to be clarified.

7.3 Documentation of Complaints:

- (a) The ACF must ensure that principles of natural justice underpin relationships with members.
- (b) The ACF is bound to give members a clear explanation of decision making processes and the reasons for its decisions.
- (c) Thorough documentation will ensure the possibility of thorough review and scrutiny.

- (d) The provisions of the Freedom of Information Act should be used as a guide in releasing information to third parties

7.4 Advice of decisions to affected persons:

- (a) Persons or organisations affected by ACF decisions are entitled to written advice giving reasons for decisions.
- (b) Significant decisions should be put in writing when advice is provided to members.
- (c) The ACF must also advise such persons or organisations of their rights of review or appeal in writing, and how they can commence this process within 7 days of a decision being made.

7.5 Investigation Procedures:

- (a) To ensure objectivity, the investigation of a complaint should not directly involve a person whose actions are subject to the complaint.
- (b) To ensure objectivity and independence, the investigation may need to be performed by persons outside the state or geographical area.
- (c) If complainant's allegations are made about a particular member's actions, the investigation must be conducted by a person in a more senior position.

7.6 Member support:

- (a) ACF delegates are responsible for ensuring that members, the subject of a complaint, receive appropriate information and support.
- (b) Such members are entitled to provide a written report outlining their perspective on the complaint issues.
- (c) Members, subject of complaints, must be advised of investigation progress (not details) and the final outcome.
- (d) Some complaints may initially focus on member actions but often eventually reveal systemic or procedural difficulties needing attention.

7.7 The use of advocates and interpreters:

- (a) Complainants must be informed of their right to have an advocate present when dealing with members of the ACF.
- (b) Persons, unable to effectively represent themselves, can be represented by either a formal or informal advocate.
- (c) Interpreters must be made available for complainants who cannot speak or understand English or for hearing impaired or deaf members.

8. OPERATIONAL PROCEDURES

8.1 Identification of the complaint:

- (a) The complaint will be defined by the complainant.
- (b) Members receiving the complaint will need to identify and clarify all the complaint issues, including outcomes expected by the complainant.
- (c) The complainant must put the complaint and related issues in writing if this has not been done and members should assist complainants to do so where appropriate.

8.2 Complaint documentation and information dissemination:

- (a) Each written complaint received is to be held by the secretary of the ACF on a complaints file.
- (b) A complaint acknowledgment letter, giving the name of the complaint coordinator, and the target completion date, is to be sent to the complainant within seven working days of the receipt of the complaint.
- (c) The ACF is to maintain accurate records on every complaint investigated, detailing the processes involved in the complaints management and resolution.

8.3 Investigating the complaint:

- (a) The person appointed to investigate the complaint (complaint coordinator) is to develop a complaint investigation plan for the approval of the ACF Executive Committee.
- (b) The plan should cover matters such as:
 - (i) summary of complainant's issues;
 - (ii) identification of persons to be interviewed/consulted;
 - (iii) list of files/documents to be reviewed; and
 - (iv) expected completion date of report.
- (c) Following the investigation, the complaint coordinator is to provide a written report summarising the findings and recommending any necessary action to the ACF Executive Committee.
- (d) The reports recommendations should focus on options necessary to resolve the complaint and, if relevant, to preclude recurrence of a similar problem.
- (e) Unless complaints have been resolved earlier, a meeting should be convened by the president of the ACF with the complainant within four weeks of the complaint receipt to discuss the findings and recommendations of the Complaint Coordinator.

- (f) Any necessary extension of time for completion of the report is to be negotiated with the complainant by the president of the ACF.
- (g) Any further meeting considered necessary for mediation or complaint resolution should be convened with minimum delay by the president of the ACF.
- (h) The final review of the complaint should ascertain whether any further action is necessary either at a state level or at other levels of the ACF.
- (i) Such action should include suggested changes in policy, procedures or practices, or the introduction of relevant training/educational courses.
